Re: Petition for Revival of Patent Application No. 09/025, 896 Abandoned
Unintentionally Under 37 CFR 1.137(b)

The entire delay in filing the required reply was unintentional.

I would like to offer an explanation for my delay in replying to communication that resulted in the abandonment of my patent application and to hopefully show that it was unintentional. I received an Office communication dated April 11, 2000 notifying me that my patent application had been abandoned because I had failed to timely file a proper reply to the Patent Office communication dated August 25, 1999. I had replied to the communication by letter dated November 4, 1999 with amendments attached but the Notice of Abandonment stated that my reply did not constitute a proper reply under 37 CFR 1.113(a) to a final rejection.

Following a telephone conversation with Charles Goodman, the examiner, I submitted a Substitute Specification on December 8, 1999 and enclosed a check in the amount of $55.00 to pay for a month extension of time. I waited for a while and when I did not receive a reply as to the status of my patent application, I attempted to contact Mr. Goodman. When I was unable to contact Mr. Goodman by telephone, I sent a follow-up letter dated April 28, 2000. On June 26, 2001, over a year later, I had a telephone conversation with Mr. Goodman to discuss the status of my patent application and he said he would check on my application and get back with me. Next, I received an Office communication dated July 3, 2001 from Mr. Goodman with an Interview Summary form attached documenting the telephone conversation we had, and attached to this form was a continuation sheet that read: "It was noted to Ms. Longstreth that application was abandoned prior to receipt of the letter filed on April 28, 2000. It was also noted that it appeared some of the submitted papers after Final were not matched with the file in time due to inadvertent delay. Whether or not the Examiner or the Office may do something about this is yet to be determined. The Examiner also noted to Ms. Longstreth that the letter will be responded to in due course." Then on July 6, 2001, I received an office communication from Mr. Goodman regarding the abandonment of my patent application that included a statement that read: "Upon review and discussion with my supervisor, it appears that the Abandonment of the Application was proper," and stated the reasons referencing the Substitute Specification and Claim I had submitted on December 9, 1999. This communication also included a statement that read: "It is noted that the above mentioned submission by applicant was not matched with the file in a timely manner due to inadvertent delay from the office. However, as noted above, this submission would not have been entered because they did not comply with the requirements for entry of After Final Amendments."

In conclusion, I want you to know that I'm only giving this information to help substantiate the fact that I have always made an effort to reply to all communications on time. I am very much aware of how important the due dates are. The delay in filing the required reply to any communication was unintentional.
